7208 Percy Street

For the ideal home that personifies chic traditional, take a look at Emory located at 7208 Percy Street. This home by SLC Homebuilding, LLC represents the perfect blend of Americana exteriors and Old World inspired interiors. A large front porch greets you as you make your way into the home. A signature of SLC Homebuilding, LLC, the porch can be utilized as extra space for the avid entertainer.

When you first enter the house, look for the iron railing that cascades from the landing to the stairwell, setting the tone for many of the ornate accents throughout. Pass through the open foyer and peek inside the utility room and decorative powder bath.

A short walk through the hall reveals a merged family room and kitchen. Warm colors radiate throughout the rooms giving the feel of tranquility. Woodwork along the kitchen wall widens the room visually. A large island reinforces the communal aspect of the room. The wide hearth in the family room is not only in keeping with the home's style but also adds to the warmth of the area. This fusion of the two rooms makes this area perfect for entertaining. Large windows lining the wall allow sunlight to warm the already soothing color palette.

Adjoining the kitchen is the formal dining room looking out onto a serene courtyard. A two-car garage and massive, connecting storage space make keeping the home organized an easy task.

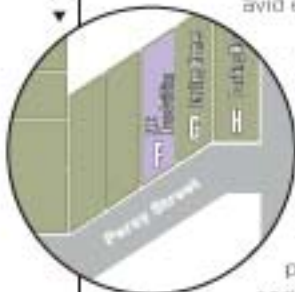

Right off the foyer is the secluded master suite. The expansive room looks out onto the front porch and leads into the luxurious bath. An oversized tub is ideal for relaxing, while the walk-in closet can store the wardrobe of even the biggest clotheshorse.

The front part of the second story divulges two bedrooms and a Jack-and-Jill bath. Second-level residents will not have to battle over room as individual walk-in closets allow for ample storage space.

The game room, accessible up the back stairwell, is the perfect haven for a party complete with a dazzling marble countertop on the wet bar, powder bath, and plenty of viewing room for guests. Large windows look out onto the backyard and offer a great view of the neighborhood.

With its warm tones and abundant living space, Emory is the perfect place to enjoy family living.
